STORIES OF SUCCESS

Upskilling and creating opportunities: Karan

Karan Rao is 25 years of age and has completed his B.Sc. in Medical Lab Technology from St. John's Medical College. He has been working with a IVF centre, in Bangalore, since approximately 3 years now as a Trainee Embryologist. "I utilised the time during the pandemic to upskill myself, as I felt the dire need to do so. Upskilling would mean more income and better chances of being retained by my employer. I decided to pursue a course in Embryology, which would open career opportunities for me and also enhance my income. The challenge lay in the cost of the course." Karan has been a part of the family at SOS Children's Villages of India since he was in class 4.

The support he received from the organisation, to the tune of INR 80,000, helped him complete the 15-day course successfully. "The support was not only timely but changed the course of my life. I can now expect my career to shape up beautifully, with the passage of time. Of course, hard work and upskilling will remain the key factors."

"Everybody has problems, but instead of aiming to gain sympathy, one should aim at gaining opportunities and utilising them to the best of one's ability."

Financially stronger for my children: Indra

"I want to ultimately buy a shop where I can sell sarees, so that I can become financially even more strong and my children can become a "Master and Ma'am" one day," says Indra, mother of 2 children, aged 9 and 6 years, residing in Bhopal. She and her husband run a saree business from their home, by selling near temples, at melas and marriages, or during festivals.

Empowered by an initial Income Generation Activity of INR 15,000 for purchasing sarees and other associated cloth material, Indra added INR 5,000 to the kitty to purchase an initial stock worth INR 20,000.

"The sarees are of all kinds: with zari, moti, and embroidery. I earn a profit of around INR 500 – 700 per day. My life is so much better than it was; I can't forget the days when my mother slogged at the brick factory.

I couldn't continue my studies, as I had to join in and help where possible. We were a family of 7 brothers and sisters, so the going was extremely tough. Now, my husband and I work together, and can support the family expenses well. My husband has also started agricultural work on rented land."

Indra understands the value of education in today's time and age, which is why she emphasises on the need for her children to continue studies, despite the disruption that pandemic has caused.

"Like every mother, I harbour dreams for my children – that they become self-reliant individuals and help society, as much as possible. This would make all the hardships
